EVENING EDITION.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA :::::::: JUNE 18.

The Intelligencer.

This journal seems to want us to advertise it into notice by a controversy. We cannot waste our time in that way, and the people would rather read news than newspaper quarrels.

It says we have misrepresented it, and our agent has underbid it for advertisements.

It will be kind enough to state how, and when we misrepresented it. We know nothing about it. It will please give particulars.

The Proprietors, or Editor of THE CONSTITUTION, have never authorized any agent to underbid any other paper for advertisements, and know nothing of it, if any one has. Our agent will answer for himself when he comes home. Our heavy advertising and large and growing circulation are the results of legitimate enterprise and energy, and croaking at us, wont check our success.

Farther, we say, and if called on, we will prove it, that in this city, advertisements have left our columns, and others have been kept out of our columns, because the Intelligencer took them much cheaper than we we would. We hold the proof at any one's disposal.

As we are on the subject, we will simply say that to claim the largest circulation, and refuse a courteous challenge to test the matter for the sake of the truth, is hardly what it should be.

Our contemporary thinks we are new, and it is old. We deny neither fact, but simply observe that merit is neither a question of youth or age, and we expect to lose nothing by our young energy and enterprise, and by giving the people the best news medium in the section.

We conclude by saying that we have never used any other but a fair, open, honorable, dignified rivalry, and we expect to keep it up.

We did not notice the matter at first, because we never appropriate loose floating charges that don't apply to us.

Joe. Brown's Claim that he did not go Back on his Marietta Speech, Considered.

Editor Constitution.—DEAR SIR: In your morning issue appeared a communication over the signature of "Lex," denying that Justice Brown's decision on the eligibility question, is in conflict with his Marietta speech," and asserting that, having read both the speech and the decision, he is unable to see the conflict."

Is he correct?

"I am asked," says Governor Brown, "if the new Constitution gives the negro the right to hold office." Mark the answer, "I reply, in my opinion, it does not."

But, it is said, the decision bases the right "upon the Code alone."

If this were true, observe the consequence: Either Governor Brown—at the time of his Marietta speech, was ignorant of the fact that the Code conferred the right to hold office, or if he knew that the Code conferred it, and yet concealed it from the people, and attempted to convince them that the negro, under the Constitution, could not hold office without further legislation, he attempted one of the most gigantic acts of fraud and deception, ever practiced. But the Governor was not ignorant of the various arguments made to prove the negro's right to hold office, and stated, that others differed with him on the subject, but he thought they were "wrong." The truth is, that the expression "upon the Code alone," is an absurdity. The Code was adopted by the Constitution, and derives all its power and authority in the premises through and by virtue of the Constitution, of which it became a part by adoption. It is, therefore, the merest quibble to state that the argument of Justice Brown is "based upon the Code alone." for, if the Code confers the right to hold office upon the negro, it is, by virtue of the authority given it by the Constitution. "In my opinion," says the Governor, "the Constitution does not give the right.

This, however, is only opinion. He determines to make it clear, even to the comprehension of a "Lex," if he had been present. "But," he continues, "you may ask me why" I so believe; and he proceeds to give his reasons. He cites the Civil Rights Bill, the Reconstruction and other Acts of Congress, and the decision of a United States Supreme Court Judge, "Radical in politics;" and demonstrates, "beyond doubt," (to use his own expression,) that Congress, in making negroes citizens, and in conferring upon them the right to vote, did not confer, "or intend to confer, the right to hold office." He thus establishes his first proposition, viz: Congress did not, by the Civil Rights Bill or Reconstruction Acts, confer upon the negro the right to hold office.

He asserts that the Constitution "goes no further" than Congress, and he proves it by arguing that the right to hold office "is the birth-right and inheritance of every white man," but "not so with the negro;" for "he was born a slave, with no political rights, and he can have none except such as are conferred or granted to him;" and that the Constitution contains no such grant, which is his second proposition. Then in the summing up and culmination of his argument, he avers the "conclusion of the whole matter" in these words:

"Congress, as the conqueror, made no such grant. The new Constitution makes one."

Having thus finished his argument, and vigorously asserted its logic, he triumphantly demands, "whence, then, is the right derived?" Publicly and boldly, he defies in answer to the question—"whence," from what source, be it from the Acts of Congress, from the Constitution or elsewhere, can the negro derive his right to hold office? No conflict, indeed! Compare the following extracts:

MARIETTA SPEECH.	DECISION.
"The negro can have no political rights except such as are granted to him. Congress, as the conqueror, has made no such grant. The Constitution makes none. Then, whence is his right to hold office derived?"	"The third paragrap of the 9th article of the Constitution of this State adopts in subordination, etc. . . . the Code of Georgia and Acts amendatory thereof, known as Irwin's Code. . . . I think it very clear that the Code of Georgia, upon which alone I base this opinion, which is binding upon all the inhabitants while of force, confers upon all her citizens the right to hold office."

We will pursue the subject in another article.

VIRGINIA LETTER.

Spicy and Interesting—The Home of Jefferson—Cherries—Virginia Politics Badly Depicted—A Jolly Stump Speaker.

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA.
June 13, 1869.

We have been to Monticello. Monticello is the place where Thomas Jefferson lived, where he died and was buried, and where there is a vast amount of cherries.

We were led to make the trip by a patriotic desire to see the home and tomb of this truly great man, and by a sensual desire to revel amid the fruit laden boughs of the orchard trees. The house is a quaint old pile—a sturdy, frowning mongrel between European and American architecture, a study for the curious as well as inspiration for the patriotic. The tomb was originally a very respectable one—sad looking and stately—but now is badly mutilated and dirty. It inspired us with a thorough melancholy, which was changed into a greedy joy, however, by the visit to the wonderful cherry grove. Georgia has no such fruit as this. Trees as large as our largest oaks, literally loaded down with luscious crimson cherries. Eight of us clambered up one tree, and taking different stations went resolutely to work to swell our doctor's bills. One little fellow curled himself on an out-stretching branch and without moving from his seat, eat so many cherries that he could not move. In fact, he eat so many that he had assumed their hue and shape, and had he been a fraction smaller, I virtually believe that I should have essayed to pluck and eat him.

Now with feet still aching from the tramp, with brain still pulsating in patriotic throbs, from the sights we saw, and fingers still crimsoned with the blood of the murdered fruit, I take up my pen to tell you of the weary, patriotic and bloody struggle now raging in this good old Commonwealth.

Virginia is ablaze with enthusiasm. Her shackles torn off, she stands upright in the fray. Her finely fibred frame quivering with mad indignation, she rings her clarion defiance and calls her sons to arms.

The Richmond Whig—that excellent repository of things political—is daily teeming with accounts of mass meetings; meetings, such as hung enraptured on the sweet speech of Henry, or listened to the lofty talkings of good Thomas Jefferson—(Oh, those cherries of his!)

The citizens of Albermarle had such a meeting a few days ago. It was the most enthusiastic meeting I ever saw. The nomination of Walker was heartily endorsed. Candidates was put up for the Legislature and Congress. Hon. —— Ridgeway, of Lynchburg, was proposed for Congress—unanimously chosen nominee and called on for a speech. Though he was rather prolix, yet, occasionally, his speech would flash and sparkle with the same fiery spirit that dictated those burning leaders in the Richmond Whig, that caused the removal of Mr. R. from the editorial chair of that paper, and his subsequent imprisonment. He is an old Virginian and a good man.

After he had finished, Mr. Shelton F. Leek was called upon. Mr. Leek was several years a Congressman; once Attorney General, and once Lieutenant Governor of this State; and he is thought to be the finest stump speaker in the whole Commonwealth. As to his speech, the best I can say of it is, that it re-called to me that glorious 23d, when in your city I sat enthused beneath the divine eloquence of Georgia's three darling statesmen. With he most exquisite humor, he combined the tenderest pathos—with the most biting sarcasm was united the softest pleading—his diction was gorgeous, yet not unsubtantial—in every glittering metaphor he couched a syllogism, and every flight of fancy thrilled his audience deeper. I have seldom heard as good a speaker, and never a better one. He is rather young.

After Mr. Leek had concluded, the crowd commenced calling on all the prominent county men. All responded to the call, and some made excellent addresses.—Others, who had never spoken a line in their lives, came trembling on the stand, and simply said that though they could not speak they could work, and work they would. So completely aroused were they that a rude, but fierce eloquence was couched in their stammerings, and the crowd was more excited by their feeble mouthings than they were by the polished and flowing periods of the graceful Ridgeway. One old gentleman—Randolph, the grandson of Jefferson, had to stop in the middle of a sentence, and leave the stage so intense was his feeling. There was another old fellow—a perfect type of the jolly Jake-loving farmer, who was called to the front. A comical figure he cut; as fat as Falstaff, and as genial as Pickwick—so essentially humorous was he, that his mouth had wreathed into a perpetual smile, his eyes twinkled continually, and they were set off by the jolliest imaginable Crow's feet. Yet, he came on the stage to make a "serious speech." He opened by calling the meeting a "revival." This brought a laugh. The old gentleman frowned and went on. In a few moments he alluded to the men that were "slugging in the same sty" with Wells. The people just whooped at this. Falstaff frowned at this levity and went on. He commenced an address to his colored man, "Pomp," who was in the gallery. Pomp—as fat as his master—took the grins awfully. Yet, our speaker spoke with seriousness still, till, at length, using some unlucky humorous expression, the crowd laughed lustily again; then he gave himself up to their mood, and made the most amusing speech that it has been my fortune to hear. The old wag kept the crowd in convulsions for an hour, and then, with very sober face, retired.

Another meeting will be held here on the 26th instant. Gilbert C. Walker, (the Conservative candidate for Governor,) will then speak—a big Barbecue is being arranged now. It will be a rousing meeting. The people in this section are confident of carring Walker through. Albemarle county will elect Conservatives.

The Radicals had a pow-wow here yesterday. The meeting was addressed by Chandler, a negro, and Wells, a man born in Michigan, and who, early impressed with a desire to benefit his State, to the best of his ability, left it. The speeches were very poor—save Wells'; he is really a first-rate speaker, and made a fine effort. The Conservatives wished him to divide time with them, but he refused. May God, protect the right!

The university is quiet; all busily engaged with their final examinations. Elections are over, and dulness reigns supreme. Mr. H. J. McDaniel, of Georgia, has written a drama, while has excited much attention. He proposes, at the advice of many friends, to give a public reading, giving the proceeds to the Washington Hall. About two hundred tickets have been already spoken for, and it will be, without doubt, a complete success. You shall hear from it.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.—For the past several days, this most excellent daily has failed to reach this office. We cannot afford to give up THE CONSTITUTION. The interesting and varied information, with which it always abounds, renders it a pleasing companion, as well as a perfect gem to the editorial sanctum. Send THE CONSTITUTION along, brother Avery. It is always a welcome visitor, and highly appreciated. Covington Examiner.

OUR esteemed contemporary is assured that the fault will not be ours, if he fails to get our paper, and we will always be obliged if our contemporaries will inform us when THE CONSTITUTION is irregularly received.

OUR Rome friends are very enterprising, and their wide-awake energy is the secret of the rapid growth of that beautiful place. The Commercial says they hold a meeting on the 24th, to get up a Fair. The same paper says, that the Rome and Selma Railroads, and the Coosa Steamboats will carry parties to the dedication of the new Masonic Hall, on the 24th, for half fare. Mr. Pierce of Desoto sold his clover just mown for $2, per hundred in the field.

THE Dawson journal thinks that section will have a good crop of corn and cotton.

THE Savannah Republican states that the case of Catherine B. Patterson, charged with murdering her husband, has been nolle prosequied. Dr. Louis D. Ford, of Augusta, was a material witness, and absent. It was claimed his evidence was important, and a continuance was asked. The Court refused the continuance, and the prosecution quit.

THE blackberry season is in hot progress, says the Americus Courier, and corn and cotton—"bully."

THE North Georgia Citizen, office at Dalton, can furnish any parties with a newspaper outfit, or a Job Office, from its surplus.

FROM all parts of the county we hear the most favorable reports of the crops. The yield of wheat and oats is above the average, and with usual seasons, we may expect an abundance of cotton and corn.—Warrenton Clipper.

WHAT FALSE CALVES ARE MADE OF.—Regular false calves are manufactured and sold in extensive demand; the said false calves being composed of lamb's and other wool woven into the material of merino leggings, just like a pair you masculine drawers; sometimes brain is used, and in all cases the imitation is very artistic and perfect.

In merrie England good false calves can be procured for about thirty shillings one pound and a half; and in New York a good article can be procured for from seven to eight dollars, warranted to look in all respects like a natural limb, and oftentimes much better. At one theatre in this city, twenty-three pairs of false calves are used, in another, about twenty-seven; and in another, eighteen.—Sunday Mercury.

FATHER RYAN TO REV. E. Q. FULLER.—What of the persecutions which the South has suffered at the hands of your Church? Ah, you are discreet enough to be silent on that point. What of the mean malignity, the atrocious mendacity, the bitter bigotry, the cruel hatred with which a large part of your Church persecuted the Southern Methodists?—Banner of the South.

Help for Our Railroads.

One of our most practical citizens has handed us the enclosed sensible remarks, which we give editorial insertion:

"There is a tide in the affairs of men which, if taken at its flood, leads on to fortune," and it would seem that such a tide is now running out in favor of Railroad enterprise in the South. Those who are interested ought to see that the ebb does not come before advantage is taken of it.

It will be remembered that the great Pacific Railway has just been completed, and that all the machinery and paraphernalia necessary to the work of that great enterprise, is now in a measure idle—most of it, we may say, has been transported eastward, and the brain, energy and money which developed and worked this gigantic enterprise, is now moving and casting about to cross some other barrier in the way of our own country's advancement and prosperity. Most, if not all, who seem interested in this road, have made large sums of money, and they are now looking for an enterprise in which they can employ their means and at the same time, use the outfit they have now on hand. In order to do this they are willing, I have no doubt, to invest their money and capital in any enterprise that will pay a good interon their entire capital. Suppose they buy bonds of the Government with their money, they must then put on the market the outfit they now have for railroad work, which must sell at a great sacrifice. Now, if they can invest in enterprises that will pay an interest on the money on hand, as also that invested in their outfit, they will make money on a greater amount than if they were to invest in stocks, which would force the sacrifice of much of their capital.

Again, the experience and practicability of these men, is such, as that they can make more money on the same work than most men who would engage to build our Southern Roads.

I have no doubt but that there are capitalists and contractors, that will engage to build some of our most practicable and paying routes, and take the greater part in stock.

Let us move forward and show what a boundless field is now opened up in Georgia for capital, and especially to that class of capitalists who desire to invest in this class of enterprise. Not only can they get heavy interests in the Railroad links from the Northern lakes to the Southern seas, but they can reap the benefits that follow in the wake of the first head of steam through countries not yet developed—countries abounding in coal, marble, slate and mines as rich and boundless as any on the continent. These countries are barren wastes on the borders of civilization. If we can only tell how much rough material we have that needs polish, and men will not doubt, the sun of another year would not go down on an undeveloped part of our country. H.

☞ Reading matter on every page.

The Supreme Court.

We call attention to the fact that our reports of the proceedings of the Supreme Court, are thoroughly accurate. Legal matters must be given perfectly, or they are valueless. And none but a lawyer can report law. To express the nice shades of meaning, requires the highest power of legal discrimination. The change or omission of a word, may alter meaning entirely. With this knowledge, we made arrangements to give our readers and exchanges, perfect reports of the proceedings and decisions of our highest legal tribunals.

Col. Hammond is an accomplished lawyer, and an officer of the Court. Unprofessional men who attempt to report law points, can not but fail to some extent.

Our report of the opinions of the Judges on the negro question, was obtained from the original manuscripts, and we would not publish until we did get them.

We farther state, that it is a matter of very considerable moment with the judges themselves, to have their dicta and opinions correctly given, and one of them, who did not desire any other publication of his views than from his own carefully prepared paper, in conversation with us, said that he was disposed to view incorrect attempts at reporting the judicial dicta, as a contempt of the Court.

☞ We are requested by the Mayor, to tell the Griffin Star, from which we clip the following humorous piece, that the mongrel mendicancy mentioned therein, assured him that the bustle of Atlanta was distasteful to his serene tastes, and that he had a number of intimate associates in Griffin, and wished to go to that locality. And the Mayor says that if this is not true, to mark him C. O. D., and ship him on:

UNWELCOME ARRIVAL.—There reached here by yesterday morning's train, from Atlanta a bruised and battered specimen of Irish-American mendicancy, on crutches, which was hideous to behold. He said he had been stopping in Atlanta several days, and claimed intimate acquaintance with Mayor Hulsey; who, he says, gave him a "ticket" to Griffin, and informed him that this was a delightful rural retreat for "gintlemen of quality," like himself.

We wish to warn our waggish friend Billey Hulsey, that if he "throws off" to Griffin with "free tickets" any more of his lazzaroni, we shall "go for him" after a style of music as far in advance of the Boston Jubilee as brother Pound, of the "Barnesville Melodeon," is ahead of Mozart or Handel. We don't have any professional beggars in Griffin. Those who can not make a living are sent to Fred Dismuke's "poor farm," and decently supported. Send no more beggars here, if you please, friend Billy.—Griffin Star.

☞ It is estimated that there will be seven miles of violin strings in the Coliseum orchestra. How many of the feline race were immolated to put those seven hundred men on the harmonious string?

A WOULD BE GEORGIAN.

High Old Scampishness—Love and Larceny—The Flirt and the Felon Coalesce—Wedlock Brought to Grief—A Matrimonial Sensation in Washington.

The people of Washington have had a genuine matrimonial sensation, in which soft words, boasted wealth, reciprocated affections, a larceny, a private marriage, sudden start on a wedding tour, a rejected and exasperated suitor, capture of a dishonest bridegroom, and prison bars are all curiously intermixed. The hero is a man giving the name of Wm. P. Brown, and representing himself to be a wealthy Georgia planter, possessed of a magnificent plantation, stately mansion, &c., but impoverished by the war, whose errand to this city was to dispose of 400 acres of the family estate, to raise the means wherewith to stock and improve the remainder. This man secured the affections, or rather the person of Miss May Carpenter, of Washington, by representing his wealth, broad acres, and reputation as particularly desirable, and promising to settle $10,000 on her in case of a marriage. These negotiations were carefully kept from the ears of the paternal head of the family, and even when the day of the marriage had been arranged, he was still kept in ignorance of the whole matter. The plans had been carefully laid, and, taking advantage of Mr. Carpenter's absence on Monday forenoon, the pseudo planter and Miss May were joined in the holy bonds of matrimony by the pastor of a fashionable church not two squares distant from the residence. But two or three persons witnessed the ceremonies; and immediately upon their conclusion, trunks were hurriedly placed on a hack in waiting, the bride and bridegroom, after farewell salutations and a few feminine tears, entered the vehicle, the impatient Jehu slammed the door, and the happy couple were off for the sunny South. The father's indignation may be imagined when he learned the truth in the evening, from a younger sister. To add to the confusion, the lover of the fickle May, a young clerk in the War Department, who expected to marry the lady himself in the fall, called to see the object of his affection in the evening. Father and lover started furiously for Alexandria, where they intercepted the fugitives at the hotel. There was no duel. The young lover did not punch the head of his successful rival; but there was simply a reconciliation, on the condition that Mr. Brown should establish his good reputation the next day. The party of four returned to Washington. The next morning Brown gave evasive answers. Mr. Carpenter suspected he was a swindler. About noon Mrs. Carpenter discovered that a valuable velvet cloak, a heavy gold chain, and a gold pencil had been stolen from the house. It was at once suspected that Brown was the guilty party. A warrant was procured. Brown passed the night behind prison bars. He was committed next day in default of $300 bail. It is stated that Brown committed the larceny in order to meet his matrimonial expenses. Thus drops the curtain on one of the strangest sensations with which the appetites of Washington gossips, have been regaled for a long time, and fortunate it is for the bride, that such decided action was taken by her father in the case, for her life, in company of such a rascal, would have been most unhappy, if not wretched.—Washington Chronicle.

A FEMALE PREACHER.

The Petticoat Invades the Pulpit—How She Looks—Progress in the Northern Methodist Episcopal Church.

The latest step in the woman movement, in New York, was the appearance of the "Rev. Mrs. Van Cott," in a metropolitan pulpit, last Sunday. The "Rev. Mrs. Van Cott," or "Widow Van Cott," as she is best known, was licensed about a year ago to preach and exhort in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and since that time she has been preaching at different points along the Hudson. Last Sunday she made her first appearance in New York.

Mrs. Van Cott is described as a passably good looking woman, of about twenty-six. Her style of preaching is florid and dramatic, and when warmed with her subject she becomes excited and somewhat reckless in gesticulation. Her voice is strong and well modulated; she dresses nearly in black; and with what a reporter calls "irizzled hair and rosy cheeks," she presents a rather agreeable appearance in the pulpit. Her debut in New York, was successful, and doubtless "the widow Van Cott" will be for sometime one of the principal Church attractions of the day."—Metropolitan Record.

THE NAKED DRAMA.

Its Demoralizing Effects—A Striking Picture of Northern Piety—New York Rotten to the Core.

The avidity with which the city press has seized the chance afforded by the petty rencontre between Mr. Butler and Henderson, to write upon the subject of these flagrant blondes, is only one among many evidences of the strong hold which the subject of this yellow importation has taken of the public mind. The question, it is true, has not been much canvassed in the newspapers; nevertheless, for a long while the public gorge has been thickening with disgust at the naked nuisance, and an opportunity generally longed for to drive it from the town. It is therefore evident, that there is no need of summoning an extreme moral sense to comprehend the mischiefs of this new mode of propagating vice. Every one understands that its exhibitions are especially devised to inflame the passions of the young, and every one sees that the sanction it receives as an apparent branch of the dramatic art, fills its lewd soirees with unwary families and with youth of both sexes, from our suburban population. There are sad proofs enough how these gilded larvæ breed to a vocation, and many a girl who months ago was modestly content with plain attire and an honest name, now basks her nude limbs in the hot gaze of an abandoned crowd, or streams like a yellow meteor along the pave, luring weak followers to her new ambition. Worse than this, under this seeming popularity of vice, sanctioned apparently by the profession of the stage, the very public women of the city, have taken new courage in their calling; and, though it may appear incredible, even Mercer street has of late come boldly to the front, and crowned with golden curls, outfaces the Fifth Avenue from the boxes of the Opera, under the patronage of millionaires. These things are not figures of speech, but cold, hard facts, and they appeal to every man who has a mother or a sister, whether we had not better fall upon some remedy to stop the yellow epidemic where it is. They appeal also to the community in mass, if this new abuse goes on, and the syren and the sylphide are to be honored in high places, whether New York will continue to be regarded as an eligible place for the rich of the country to come with their families to settle down in, and whether, consequently, we have not spent our millions upon Central Park and its embellishments in vain. All these questions are involved in the nurture of an art which is a mere breeding-school for vice, and which shames society by bringing practised prostitution to the front. With these suggestions we turn the subject over, for the future, to the department where it belongs.—Wilkes' Spirit of the Times.

☞ A very young man, living in Montgomery, in love with a very young lady, paid her a visit last Friday evening. The old folks thought that the children were too young to keep company, and conveyed the hint by calling the girl out of the room and sending her to bed. The lady of the house astonished the very young man by bringing into the parlor a huge piece of bread and butter, and saying, in her kindest manner: "There, Bub, take this and run home to your mother; it is time little boys were in bed." It is one of the most outrageous cases of cruelty we ever knew.

☞ Besides the thirteen railroads now centering in Chicago, seventeen others are building which will have a terminus in that city.

RICHMOND, June 18.—United States Marshal Parker, this morning, made a descent on an alleged Cuban recruiting rendezvous, and arrested H. H. Harrison, the leading man. Harrison had plenty of funds in the bank, and promptly gave bail in $1,000 to appear. It is stated about thirty men were recruited yesterday. Men are promised $500 bounty in New York.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

CHARLESTON, June 18.—It is officially announced that the interest on the State of South Carolina Bonds, and stock for the two years ending July 1st prox., will be paid on and after that day; the interest on the bonds will be paid in New York and in Columbia, and on the registered stock in Columbia only.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Several Cubans paid Ludlow street jailor twenty dollars each, for a bed.

The Herald says Minister Senor Lamus, was found at his residence in Brooklyn, at a late hour, but declined to recognize the character of the officers who presented the order, and refused to permit himself to be arrested; he gave parole to appear in the morning at court and answer the charges.

The officers acknowledged they had been well paid, to make the arrest at that late hour, the presumption being that it was intended to subject him to the personal indignity of imprisonment, at an hour when no court was in session, to take cognizance of bail.

The verbiage of bond to keep the peace, is to be of good behavior towards the United States, and shall refrain from any violation of the neutrality laws, or from any breach of the peace of the United States, for the term of one year.

The whole proceeding was characterized by a degree of ruffianism and brutality, unworthy of the fame that New Yorkers and Americans hold so dear. These Cubans may have violated the international law of the country, yet, nevertheless, they were entitled to the common privileges accorded from time immemorial, to the refugees of tyranny from every climate. Mr. Evarts appeared for Senor Lamus.

The Quaker City, now known as the Columbia, sailed under British colors, but will hoist the rebel colors on reaching Haytien waters. She has been altered into a powerful war vessel.

So Freddy prayed—"God bless papa and mamma and baby, but as for me, I've been a bad boy, and I guess I'm a gone sucker.'"

☞ There are hopeful signs that the gross and bloated carcass of Radicalism is on the verge of bursting with its own rottenness. All through the North we see symptions of this—slight in some instances, stronger in others—but all tending to the much desired dissolution of

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR OR

Medicine for Dyspepsia, Headache Jaundice, Costiveness, Camp Dysentery, Sick Headache, Chronic Diarrhœa, Affections of the Bladder and Kidneys, Fever, Nervousness, Bilis, Diseases of the Skin, Impurity of the Blood Melancholy or Depression of Spirits

Most of the ailments here enumerated have their origin in a diseased liver, which is the most prevalent affection in this country, and as in many cases the patient is not within the reach of a physician, it requires that some remedy should be provided that would not in the least impair the constitution, and yet be active and safe. That such is the character of the SIMMONS LIVER LATOR there can be no doubt, which the testimony of hundreds will establish.

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED

LIVER.

Pain in the side. Sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade is mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternating with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, an impulse of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred when few of them existed, yet examination of the body after death has shown the Liver to have been extensively deranged.

It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the foregoing symptoms appear. It is a purely vegetable compound, is not injurious to the most delicate constitutions, and will keep the liver in healthy action if used properly.

Persons living in unhealthy localities may avoid all bilious attacks by taking a dose occasionally to keep the liver in healthy action.

Regulator

For children complaining of colic, headache, or sick stomach a teaspoonful or more will give relief. Children, as well as adults, eat sometimes too much or something which does not digest well, producing sour stomach, heart burn, or restlessness; a good dose will give relief. This applies to persons of all ages.

Many persons, from eating too much, are restless at night, or in day time sleepy, wool-gathering, can't understand what they read, can't keep their thoughts on any one subject so as to rea on well, or become fretful. One or two tablespoonful will give relief.

Jaundice.—Take enough Regulator after eating each meal to produce one full action from the bowels every day.

Pregnant ladies will find sure relief from their headache, costiveness, swimming in the head, colic, sour stomach, restlessness, etc., etc.

Supreme Court—Evening Session.

[Reported Expressly for The Constitution.]

FRIDAY, June 18, 1869.

Argument was resumed and concluded No. 8, Southwestern Circuit. Charlotte Hunt vs. The State—Adultery and fornication, from Dougherty.

H. Morgan, for plaintiff in error. W. H. Whitely, Solicitor General, for the State.

No. 12. Jake Collier vs. The State—Assault with intent to murder, was argued. Morgan, for plaintiff in error. R. H. Whitely, Solicitor General, for the defendant in error.

No. 13. Mason Tiller vs. D. Spradley, sheriff for Green J. Jordan—Motion for new trial, from Lee, was argued by W. A. Parkins and D. Vason, representing C. B. Wootten, for plaintiff in error, and by G. Wright, representing F. West and Geo. Yarbrough, for defendant in error.

No. 14. Benj. Tuggle and wife, et. al., vs. A. L. McMath, et. al.—Ejectment, from Turner, was taken up and the argument begun by Judge Clark.

J. J. Scarborough, represented by S. A. Parkins and Judge Clark, for plaintiff in error. W. A. Hawkins, for defendant in error, in said cause.

Pending the opening argument, Court adjourned till 10 o'clock, A. M., to-morrow.

LYON'S COURT.—Yesterday morning, a porter who made an attack upon an old newsboy, was brought up before the Honor. Mayor Hulsey. The evidence elicited the following state of facts:

Several small newsboys were congregating in front of the National Hotel. The porter had borrowed a newspaper from one of the newsboys and was reading it. Some of the boys were laughing, talking, and joking with each other. The porter told them to leave. The newsboy, Willie Jones, went beyond the lamp post to the Railroad crossing. One of the boys in a spirit of mischief, put his hand on the wall or window freshly painted. The porter goes in search of procures a buggy whip, the boys in the meantime running, except Jones. When the porter came up to the boy, Jones, he quickly grasped him by the collar, and struck him with the whip. Soon after Cassidy came up and wrested the whip from the porter's hands, and soundly chastised him. This is the substance of the evidence.

The Mayor deeming it a clear case of assault and battery, bound him over to answer the charge at the next Superior Court in the bond of $200.

The charge was preferred against Castallo but Mayor Hulsey declined to fine him, because it was a similar cause of assault and battery not within his jurisdiction, and no one prosecuting the case, did not bind him over. The decision of the Mayor was highly charged, but he promptly checked him and ordered the Marshal to arrest the man who did it, as he did not sit to make decisions for the public ear, but to decide according to Law and Justice. He said that the law was made to protect the weak against the strong.

The porter, (heaven save the mark,) was arrested for gross unfilial conduct in striking his brother. A younger brother, not porter, protected his mother, and told his unfilial brother that he should not strike his mother in his presence.

Mayor Hulsey fined the party who struck the porter, $25, and administered a rebuke to him for his conduct, that he will be very apt to remember. He complimented the boy for his manly and filial conduct.

than can be obtained elsewhere in the city.

The "Tilton style" Buggy, for workmanship and material has NO EQUAL, except the "Abbot" buggy. My Repository, one of the largest in the city, possesses the advantage in its location of costing less than half the rent of those up town, I can therefore offer my vehicles at less price.

Those who have had my work require no reference; but to those unacquainted I would respectfully refer to:

For my new style of slide seat Buggy I refer to Messrs. Jno. M. Clarke & Son, attorneys at law, Atlanta, Ga., who have recently purchased one. apr18-d3m.

THE DAILY CONSTITUTION,
ATLANTA, GEORGIA ::: JUNE 18.

City and Suburban Affairs.

THE Quarterly Conference for Wesley Chapel will meet at the Church this evening at 8 o'clock.

WATERMELONS.—Watermelons ruled a little lower this morning, in our city; the asking price being only two dollars each.

VEGETABLES.—Our markets and vegetable stands are well supplied with okra, tomatoes, cucumbers, squashes, Irish potatoes, and other vegetables, and are selling at good figures.

BOUND OVER.—The individual alluded to by us yesterday evening, as having made an outrageous attack upon an orphan newsboy, was brought up before His Honor, Mayor Hulsey, this morning, and bound over to the next Superior Court to answer the charge of assault and battery in a bond of $250.

IMPORTANT INTELLIGENCE BY G. V. TELEGRAPH.—New York, June 18.—The President of the Fourth National Bank of this city, has been incarcerated for refusing to obey the injunction of Gov. Bullock got to hold official intercourse with N. L. Angier, State Treasurer.

Private information has been received that the forces in Warren county are engaged in catching doodles and terry-fying them since Norris left.

TEMPERANCE CELEBRATION AT RINGGOLD.—A valued correspondent writes us, that the temperance people of Ringgold had a temperance celebration there a few days since. The Sons of Temperance had a large procession, in which they were joined by the Sabbath Schools of that town. Col. A. T. Hacket, a well known lawyer of Ringgold, delivered an eloquent address on the occasion, making a deep impression upon his hearers, and creating a marked interest in behalf of the cause. There was an abundance of something good to eat. The occasion was one of pleasure to all parties.

INTERESTSNG CASE—HOMEOPATHY, VS. ALLOPATHY.—This morning an interesting case was tried before Thomas C. Spencer, J. P., by Executive appointment Dr. W. L. Cleveland, homeopathist, sued Dr. F. C. Ford, allopathist, for medical services rendered. After a lengthy discussion of the case by Col. Y. A. Gaskill, for plaintiff, and T. P. Westmoreland, for defendant; the Justice announced that he would reserve his decision until to-morrow morning.—The points made by the defendant's counsel, were, that the diploma exhibited should be ruled out until the charter of the College granting it, should be produced in Court, and that the amount claimed being over $100, the Court had no jurisdiction in the premises.

NEW YORK JOURNALISM.

Youth Ahead—Old Men Shoved Back—The Philosophy of Progress and Success—Journalistic Celebrities.

The young, vigorous blood which flows with healthful energy through the veins of the rising newspaper men of the present day in this city is telling with admirable effect in the columns of our city journals. Spirit and force is given to the productions which emanate from them, and a wide parallel is drawn between them and the fogy editors of the past generation. Enterprise, industry and careful observation supplant the teachings of experience, and to-day we have on the New York press a class of young men, bold and dashing in their style, sound and firm in their argument, and sparkling and witty in their humor, who are too often traduced and disgraced by the bummers and literary kangaroos who jump from one situation to another, and who are taken as representative men.

Whisky and turkey suppers are not the prominent likings of newspaper men, except those besotted "beats" who only make a business of itemizing for the purpose of gormandizing and satiating an appetite which honest labor and gentlemanly respectability would never satisfy.

The responsible men on the press to-day are in the main gentleman whom it is a pleasure to know—gentleman of talent, of integrity, and high-toned respectability, and it is those we accept as the representatives of the rising generation of newspaper people in New York, rather than the niggardly few whose debauches bring ignominy upon the whole fraternity.

Glancing over the field of labor, we observe scores of fine fellows working with indefatigability—gradually cutting their way through the diversified events of newspaper life to positions of emolument and fame. They are young men too—some beardless, but showing a power of the pen well up to older heads; others more advanced, yet youthful and full of energy.

Busy as an industrious little hatter, works R. R. Sinclair, a man of perhaps twenty-seven years of age, whose finished style of writing, commands the warmest approbation from his confreres of the Times, in particular, and his host of intimate personal friends in general.

George F. Williams—a reliable, hard-working "local," of thirty-five summers—replete to the crown of his ringletty head with energy and spirit, and a military authority far above the times. As military editor of the Times he has won a pleasant celebrity, and his chronicles of the war form some of the most pleasant features of stories "from the front."

Mix—the genial James, a very Dundreary in manner—is a bright and good-looking fellow, over whose head the sunshine of thirty springs has cast its glow of glory. Mix is a sharp and piquant writer, a good and industrious man, but really so "dem'd fond of myself, you know." Withal, he is a capable newspaper-man, bound to find his level, which seems to incline toward the Tribune, in behalf of which blanket sheet he now exercises his talent.

George Pierce—rosy-cheeked, smiling George, brimful of opera bouffe, and looking as fresh and as blooming as a bunch of dewy roses—is Mix's special confrere in business. Thirty cold winters have not frozen the energies of Pierce, and night after night he plods to his little home after doing up a batch of locals for the Tribune.

St. Clair McElway, the twenty-eight-year old boy baby of the World, holds a pen of exceeding great ponderosity, has but few friends in the profession, albeit he is a dashing sort of a fellow, who has commanded much attention for his bold style of writing and his inaccuracy of "facts and figgers."

W. M. Rosenblat, a promising young journalist not yet attained his majority. The lack of experience which sometimes shows itself is more than balanced by industry and go-aheadativeness. A fluid linguist, a vigorous and comprehensive writer, and a first-class condenser, make Rosenblat, who is one of the Sun's bright beams, destined to a high position in the journalistic world.

Wm. J. C. Meaghan, a dapper little fellow, fully seven and twenty, brimful of wit and genial good humor. As a special of the Herald, Meaghan has traveled this wide world well over, and sported literally in the bright mazes of sea-shore life. As a correspondent, he is sharp and chatty, entertaining and pleasant, with notes of experience from the rusticity of the Green Mountains to plain, unvarnished matter of stern fact, "Ku Klux court-sies."

Ronald Macdonald—a quiet steady worker—a young editor of superior tact, great experience, and more than average caution. A man of rather distingue personnel, with a nerve for the penetration of cuticle jokes, and withal a compiler of news of pre-eminent highness.—N. Y. Democrat.
